

Associate Engineer AEng AMIEI

Application for the registered title

This page to be retained by applicant

Why should you become an Associate Engineer?

Your ability to apply and practice your engineering skills and knowledge is certified by your professional body, Engineers Ireland.

You gain national and international recognition through holding the registered title, Associate Engineer.

You will have opportunities, through Engineers Ireland, to further develop your expertise and insight in your engineering discipline.

You enhance your engineering career potential and prospects.

You will find opportunities to network with other Associate Engineers from your own and other engineering disciplines.

Application Procedure

Full details of the application procedure are described in our publication "Associate Engineer" which are available to download on our website www.engineersireland.ie. Please read carefully before completing this application form, especially the check-list in the Appendix.

Membership Subscription Rates are published on our website.

NOTE: Applicants applying for transfer should ensure that their annual subscription is paid.

The requirements in respect of all grades and titles are published in the Membership Regulations on our website www.engineersireland.ie.

Supporters of this Application

Applicants are required to have their application supported by a Chartered Engineer and an Associate Engineer, or two Chartered Engineers, familiar with all or part of the applicant's work and his/her engineering practice and ability. Each supporter is expected to read the candidate's Engineering Practice Report prior to signing this Application Form on Page 1.

In exceptional circumstances, Engineers Ireland will consider alternative arrangements, where, because of the nature of an applicant's employment, he/she cannot provide supporters who are Chartered Engineers or Associate Engineers. In such cases, the applicant should make an application to Engineers Ireland at least one month before submitting this Form and the Engineering Practice Report.
